The FOREST FLOOR of a tropical rainforest is so dark that it is difficult for plants to grow. Leaves that fall to the floor decay. The floor animals such as peccaries, armadillos, and anteaters feast on these decomposers. Collared Peccary: A hoofed mammal that looks and sounds like a furry wild pig. Also called javelina. glue Animal

FALL IN LOVE WITH FOREST CREATURES

To the orangutan, the forest is everything. It's a home to nest in and a restaurant to feast in. It's a school where little ones like Mamai will learn at mom's side in the longest childhood out of any mammal on the planet besides humans. The forest is a highway for the red apes, the treetops a tangle of off ramps.

there, they find a forest feast. Top-ping the menu is fruit, which makes up nearly half of what they eat. The rest of their diet may not sound so scrumptious to you: insects, spiders, sap, and the occasional lizard. At first, the baby tamarins just drink Mom's milk. But once they are ready to try solid food, Dad and the other members of
